Abbasid caliphs continued at Baghdad—with however, only nominal power—until 1258. Thereafter, a branch of the family in Cairo held the caliphate until the sixteenth century.